Straight answers

to design-build questions you should be asking.

Q: | A:

protecting the quality reputation they have helped us achieve.

Q: Do you use outside subcontractors?

A: Yes. We use numerous reputable subcontractor specialists, plumbers and electricians. All are selected for their commitment to providing top-quality materials, workmanship and service.

Q: What if I have a concern during the remodeling?

A: No problem. Just talk to your project supervisor or call the office. We maintain open communication to make the remodeling process smooth and painless.

That's how we do business ... and that's how we make dreams come true.

Q: Is design-build the right way to go?

A: Definitely. And James Barton Design-Build is the right company to choose. When we take responsibility for your project from start to finish, you are assured of a smoother, more satisfying experience.

Q: Do you offer design services?

A: Absolutely. Our designers can help turn your ideas into reality, working with your existing structure, meeting code requirements and fitting your construction budget.

Q: Do I need an architect?

A: Probably not. In fact, the designs created by an architect or outside designer often require modifications that can add to your costs. Our designers will give you plans that are ready to build.

Q: Will you design what I want?

A: Absolutely. Our designers will listen to your ideas, see your vision and work with you until their design meets or exceeds your expectations.

Q: What happens when things go wrong?

A: Any remodeling project can uncover surprises, causing deviations from the plan. When that happens, our designers are quick with solutions and our carpenters are ready to make the modifications. Efficiently and economically.

Q: How do you keep everything under control?

A: It's easy. Our designers, project supervisors and carpenters are on staff at James Barton Design-Build. They take pride in doing the job right ... and
